Jason Smith Hired as National Sales Manager for Production Turning Products at Absolute Machine Tools, Inc.

[Lorain, OH – April 2020] Jason Smith has been hired as the new National Sales Manager for production turning products at Absolute Machine Tools, Inc., leading importer and distributor of CNC machine and automation equipment. Smith's duties are primarily to build strong business relationships by meeting client needs.

"I've landed at a really great company," said Smith. "Absolute offers resources dedicated to production turning. Other machine tool distributors offer solutions within that segment of the market, but Absolute Machine Tools separates itself from others by dedicating multiple subject matter experts to serve customers within that segment. My goal is to use the resources at Absolute Machine Tools to provide exceptional customer service."

Smith plans to use his background in manufacturing engineering and technical sales to excel in his new position. He reports that he is looking forward not only to helping new customers, but to assisting existing customers and nurturing long-lasting relationships through technical support and superior service.

Prior to joining Absolute, Jason had spent 20 years in the machining industry, the majority of which was focused on production turning. He started with simple set up positions and soon became capable with a wide array of machining processes. Smith holds a Precision Machining certificate from the Akron Machining Institute, as well as various sales training and machining certificates from organizations such as Ross Training Systems, LLC, and Dale Carnegie Training.
